3 tips to kick-start your job hunt

Author : ecxmlrpc

Date : February 6, 2012

In the current climate people are often put off the idea of changing their job.Companies often find it hard to find experienced staff. Your most important asset is your experience and so when applying for a new job make sure you match that experience and your skills to what the employer wants. That way you present a positive image of yourself and make a strong case that you are the right person for the job. That way you will show prospective employers that you are a serious contender and have a professional attitude. Get as much information as possible on the company you are interested in.

Read the full article here:
Resolutions: 3 tips to kick-start your job hunt - Beaumont Enterprise