Social Networks have become inevitable in the daily life of a common man. Everyone that can't login to his social site for one day feels very bad and affects his whole mental mood. Companies are now getting the idea on how they can get the best employees to their company through these social websites. The companies can also interact with their workers, and their projects and advertisements will reach all over the world since the Internet is available everywhere. The social websites like Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn are used by the companies in recruiting employees.
