A resume that catches the eye of the reader

Author : ecxmlrpc

Date : August 13, 2012

Everyone agrees that a good and strong resume is key to job hunting success. There are different types of resumes used to apply for job openings where candidates should choose a chronological, a functional,or a targeted resume where Employers typically prefer these type of resumes.A targeted resume is a resume that highlights the experience and skills that are relevant to the job being applied for. Besides,a nontraditional resume is a web-based version that may include photos, graphics, images, and other visuals.

Read the full article here:
A resume that catches the eye of the reader can help catch that elusive job - nwitimes.com