The article contains information about an infographic advising how to create a resume that is more effective in the modern, digital age. In contrast to preparing a traditional resume that consists only of the written word, the modern job-seeker may be more successful by incorporating social media into their C.V.. Photos, video and hyperlinks are all tools to help a resume stand out. Also important is the impression a potential employee makes on social networks such as Facebook. Employers frequently scan such sites in order to gain an insight into the behavior and attitudes of their prospective employees.
